Meeting the challenges of inclusive service

Our team of experts understand the challenges that the retail sector faces when meeting their legal and regulatory obligations in respect of Equality, Diversity and Inclusion.

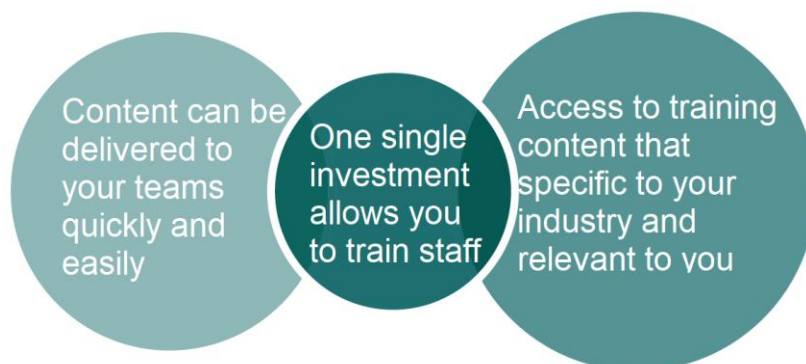

Workplace Diversity Solutions can help businesses looking to improve the customer experience for people with a disability. Our team can provide you with the tools, resources, guidance, and training materials you need to offer a truly exceptional customer experience.

Our Learning Solution Works Across Your Population

How our solution works for you

In short, we provide you with an integrated set of tools to meet the Equality, Diversity and inclusion training needs for your workforce. Using this learning solution, you do not need to rely on an external training provider to deliver course content. Learning in a Box empowers you to deliver content whenever or wherever you need it.

Why invest in inclusive service?

Research suggests that businesses who embrace diversity and inclusion outperform those who fail to see the benefits of being truly inclusive. Teams that are more diverse, feel valued, and who respect each other perform significantly better than those who have not received appropriate training and support.

Diversity and Inclusion covers many different areas including:

Disability	Age	Gender Reassignment
Religion & Belief	Pregnancy & Maternity	Sexual Orientation
Marriage & Civil Partnership	Sex	Race

Spotlight on Disability:

Consider the business case for disability awareness and you will start to see that it makes business sense to be truly inclusive.

People with a disability represent a growing consumer base within the United Kingdom, with the spending power of households with a disability estimated to be in excess of £250bn per year.

Our society is changing and with over 11 million people in the United Kingdom having either a disability or a long-term health condition, it is becoming more and more important that businesses appreciate the importance of engaging with people who have a disability.
